地點：理學院四樓理 SC 4009-1 室

Abstract

Knuth's TeX is a masterpiece for high-quality typesetting. After you have mastered TeX, will you be a TeXpert or a TeXnician? This question is (a rephrased version of) Exercise 1.1 in the TeXbook. There are some etiquettes for using TeX, such as the pronunciation of TeX and the difference between -, --, and ---. There are also some dirty tricks to achieve specific goals, such as using `\phantom` to create a space with the same width as the equal sign. In this talk, we will go through several examples to illustrate these etiquettes and dirty tricks.
